Generation 61 through 186094 and 186090 and 186226 and 188274 and 372722 and 200273 and 335569

Flavius Theodosius -Teodosio I "The Great", b. 11 Jan 346 in Segovia, Spain, d. 17 Jan 395 in Milano (through Aboazar Lovesendes)

I know for a fact that I have African ancestors on my paternal side. This is evidenced by my late father's 1.6% fraction of African (Sub-Saharan) descent in his genetic admixture (www.23andme.com). This fraction indicates that my most recent (full) African ancestor probably belongs to Generation 7 or earlier. Most likely, given the abundance of information in my father's other family lines, she was an ancestor of person 19. In particular, my guess is that she was an ancestor of person number 39.

Person 19's baptism record (April 26 1830) states she was "abandoned" (exposta) in person 38's house as a newborn. The 1831 census record shows that person 38 was 63 years old in 1830, single, and lived with person 39. Person 39 was then 43 years old and person 38's slave. Although the census officially classifies person 38 as crioula (black born in Brazil), it is possible that she was not 100% African.

I conjecture that person 19 was in fact person's 38 and 39 daughter. The 1831 census shows that there was one and only one other person in person's 38 and 39 household: a mixed race boy (pardo) aged 11. The boy's name was Antonio Hortencio Xavier. The name similarity and circumstances suggest the boy was person 38 and 39's son. Person 19's first name is also clearly derived from person's 38 name.

Why wouldn't person 38 formally recognize person 19 as his daughter? In addition to potential "reputational" concerns in 1800s Brazil, there is an economic reason. A few years after person 19 was born, in July 10 1835, person 38 filed a motion asking for the city of Mariana to write off the 16$075 in taxes he owed to the city because of the costs (50$000) incurred in raising person 19. At that time, such was common. Mariana, and other cities from Minas Gerais, reduced taxes on those who took responsibility for raising abandoned children (enjeitados).

Person 38 was a Brazilian nationalist, which probably explains person's 19 adopted surname "do Brasil". Person 38 wrote a nationalistic poem to Brazil's first emperor Pedro I in the occasion of his visit to Mariana in February 20 1831. The poem's ending is below.

*E Tu, Herói, que tens virtudes raras,
E do vasto Brasil a sorte aclaras,
És nome tutelar, és firme escora,
E Argos do bem do povo, que te adora;
Cheio de nome e de esplendor, esmaltais
O cetro imperial, e o trono exaltais
Do lindo continente, auribordado,
Que tens com tanta glória sustentado,
Graças, oh! Pedro, oh! Amelia, oh! Patria, oh! Povo,
Oh! Justiça, oh! Razão, oh! Mundo Novo,
Do nosso imperio as filhas da Memoria
Aos tardos netos contarão a historia."*

There is one more interesting piece of information about person 19. She had at least two out-of-wedlock daughters with person 18, one of them being person 9, my great-grandmother. Both daughters were born before person 18 got married in 1853 to another woman, Alexina Fontoura de Andrade. In his will, person 18, who was very wealthy, named both his daughters with person 19, but withheld formal recognition of affiliation. However, such out-of-wedlock affiliation is evident on person 8 and 9's marriage record, of November 9 1867, in the books of Sao Francisco Xavier church in Rio de Janeiro.

Before 1860, person 19 married Theodolindo Ferreira de Assis, and changed her surname to "de Assis". They had at least two children, half-siblings of person 9. Person 19 died in Rio de Janeiro in 1865.

Curiosity: Where does the "de Andrade" name come from?

It comes from the son of persons 268 and 280 and 328 and 336 (Inacio de Andrade Peixoto) and 269 and 281 and 329 and 337 (Helena de Brito). This couple lived in downtown Braga, Portugal, first in Rua do Souto and then on Rua dos Pelames, now called Rua de São Geraldo. Inacio was born in Fornelos, a small village close to Fafe, and initially worked with his brother as a cowherd on the hills around his village. As an adult, Inacio moved to Braga, where he first lived in the house of a widow in Rua do Souto. There he became a sirgueiro (weaver) and a mercador. At 38 years of age Inacio married Helena de Brito, probably much younger and from Joane, a smaller town close by. Their son Antonio Brito Peixoto, born just two months before Ignacio died, would eventually immigrate to Brazil. There was a significant amount of intermarriage among Antonio's descendants: Antonio is my ancestor through four different lines, out of 128 possible at the 8th generation.

Now the interesting bit: both Inacio and Helena were children of catholic priests.

Inacio's father was Francisco da Costa Peixoto, born in Fornelos (Fafe). He was the priest in Igreja da Conceição in Guimarães, and in Igreja de Santa Eulália in Fermentões, a village close to Guimarães. Father Francisco had at least two sons with Angela do Vale de Andrade, who was three years younger than him and from Cima de Vila, close to Fornelos. Because Angela is the earliest "de Andrade" on the list, the earliest location associated with the surname is Cima de Vila, shown in the map below. Angela do Vale de Andrade died in Longos Vales (Monção) where she was the ama (helper) of Francisco's brother, Father Inacio da Costa Peixoto, also a catholic priest.

Helena's father was Tomás de Brito, born in the city of Braga. He was a catholic priest and had at least 3 children with Domingas da Costa, from the village of Joane, close to Braga. Other than being a priest, Tomas raised horses in Urjães, just outside of Braga, where he lived in Rua dos Janes and then Rua dos Pelames (Sao Geraldo). Before moving to Braga, Tomas lived with his father Miguel de Brito Eirado. Miguel was also a catholic priest, at the Igreja do Divino Salvador in Joane.
